False Piety, True Contrition

By Gregory F. Augustine Pierce

There's a joke about a priest and deacon who are peeking out from the vestibule at a man sitting in the back pew of church, beating his breast and saying aloud, "Lord, be merciful to me, a sinner." The priest turns to the deacon saying, "Now look at who thinks he's a sinner!"

margin of this article is justified."

The tax collector wasn't justified simply because he beat his breast and said he was a sinner. He was justified because he was truly contrite. True contrition, as the Church teaches, has four steps—none of which can be skipped if we're to be "made straight."

Step by Step

First, we have to admit wrongdoing. This is what the Pharisee (like many of us) was unwilling to do. The tax collector, on the other hand, admitted that he had done many bad things, and he was genuinely sorry for them, which is the second mandatory step of contrition.

The third step is what Catholics call "a firm purpose of amendment." That means we have a plan for how we're going to change our behavior. A vague "I'll try harder to be good" is insufficient. The idea isn't to mimic the tax collector who came back every week to beat his breast and say what a sinner he was. The point of admitting our sins and asking for mercy is that we are supposed to stop sinning!

The final step in true contrition is penance. That is, we must suffer consequences and make up for the harm we have done. To be justified, the tax collector couldn't simply go out and "sin no more." He also had to try to make right whatever he could—perhaps by giving money back to people he had cheated or, if that was impossible, by donating money, time, or talent to some good cause. If there were no other way to change his sinful behavior, then the tax collector might have to quit his job to be justified.

Beyond "I'm Sorry"

If the tax collector was truly contrite and not just putting on a show of piety, he would have wanted to follow all four of these steps. That's why he would have gone away justified. Otherwise, he would have been no different than the Pharisee. Nor would we.

In this business of asking forgiveness, we have to make sure that we are not exalting ourselves with false piety, for as Jesus said at the end of the parable of the Pharisee and the Tax Collector, "Everyone who exalts himself will be humbled, and the one who humbles himself will be exalted." This goes for all sinners. +

Lord, your life teaches the way of peace and nonviolence.
Help me to imitate your example in times of conflict.

I would like to express my deepest gratitude to my family at Our Lady of Lourdes Catholic Parish for the overwhelming expression of love at the retirement reception hosted in my honor. Most of my adult life has been lived in this parish and my entire life has been lived in this parish community. It has been my joy to clean the church on a weekly basis for all these years. The last few years my joy became mingled with suffering to be offered up as my ability to walk without assistance became more difficult.

To everyone who helped in any capacity with the reception, to all who have prayed for me, to all who have offered there assistance in cleaning the church, I say thank you and I pray that God will bless you.

Palm Sunday of the Lord's Passion (C)
April 14, 2019

Recognizing the Companions We Need

By Mary Katharine Deeley

On Palm Sunday, we gather as a Church to celebrate Jesus' coming into Jerusalem and hear the story of his passion and death. Each Gospel writer tells the story a little differently. Each one lifts up different faces and characters, and through their eyes we watch what unfolds.

Luke's Gospel is the only one that mentions the women who followed Jesus from Galilee (23:55–56). We know nothing about these women other than where they came from, but two things stand out: These women temporarily set aside their Passover preparations to care for a man who had been publicly condemned as a criminal, and they were willing to look their beloved Jesus' death full in the face. They watched while Joseph of Arimathea laid him in the tomb and made sure that Jesus would be cared for even in death. They saw where he was buried and laid out and then went to prepare the spices and oils that would anoint his body and honor it.

Today, these women are examples of the countless anonymous disciples who quietly challenge culture and politics to follow the Lord's call. We rarely notice them, even now, but they are in our churches and our neighborhoods, willing to do what needs to be done, even if it means suffering, sacrificing, or looking rejection and death in the face. As we enter Holy Week, these people just might be the companions we need. +

Sunday Readings

Isaiah 50:4–7

The Lord GOD is my help, therefore I am not disgraced.

Philippians 2:6–11

He humbled himself, becoming obedient to death, even death on a cross.

Luke 22:14–23:56
or Luke 23:1–49

When [the women] had seen the tomb and the way in which his body was laid in it, they returned and prepared spices and perfumed oils.

A Word from Pope Francis

Let us ask for the grace to follow Jesus faithfully, not in words but in deeds. Let us also ask for the patience to carry our own cross, not to refuse it or set it aside, but rather, in looking to him, to take it up and to carry it daily.

REFLECTION QUESTIONS ONE2LION2 REFLECTION

- Do I attempt to identify and assist those who are quietly doing God's work?
- Do I humbly do God's work, rather than seeking recognition or other earthly rewards?

THE GARDEN OF GETHSEMANE

O Jesus, Who in the excess of Your love to win hearts, do give abundant graces to those who meditate on your holy passion in Gethsemane, I pray You to lead my heart and soul to think often of the most bitter agony You suffered in the Garden, to pity You and to join with You completely.

O most Holy Jesus, Who bore during that night the weight of all our sins and paid for them, please grant me the great gift of contrition for my many sins which caused You to sweat blood.

Most Holy Jesus, by virtue of the terrible struggle You endured in Gethsemane, give me the power of complete and final victory in the temptations that beset me, especially those to which I am most often subject.

O my Jesus, by virtue of the anxieties, fears and the unknown but intense pain which You suffered on the night in which You suffered on the night in which You were betrayed, give me the light to follow Your holy will and to think upon and to understand the enormous effort and formidable struggle You endured victoriously in fulfilling not your will, but the will of the Father.

Praise to You, O Jesus, for the agony and the tears poured out during the Holy Night, for the sweat of blood and the deadly distress You endured, that solitude more frightful than man can imagine.

Praise to You, most sweet but vastly sorrowful Jesus, for the prayer at once human and divine which poured forth from Your agonized heart during that night of ingratitude and of treason.

Eternal Father, I offer to You all the Holy Masses of this moment, of the past, and of the future, united with Jesus in agony in the Garden of Olives.

O Most Holy Trinity, cause the knowledge and love of the Sacred Passion of Gethsemane to be diffused in the world.

And, O my Jesus, may those who love You and look upon the crucifix remember Your incredible pain in the Garden, and may they follow Your example, learn to pray well, to fight and overcome so they may eternally glorify You in heaven.

Amen.
